

Here at the party store, they used to carry just about everything you'd need to put together an awesome celebration. Balloons, confetti, party hats, those candles that won't blow out... they had everything. Well, almost everything.

The one thing they didn't have was customizable banners. You see, customers often wanted to create unique signage for their special occasions, not just the generic, pre-packaged, "Happy Birthday" or "Congrats" sign. Yawn.

That's where I stepped in. Why? Because I'm more than just another color copier. Sure, I can create gorgeous color copies, print invitations, brochures and envelopes. But my specialty is banners. Really big ones, like 11.6" x 47.24" big! And with some basic PC software, our customers can add their own graphics and text to quickly create personalized, professional-looking, fully customizable banners in a matter of minutes. Not only do I provide a great service for our customers, I'm also generating some serious profit for the store.

Because of me the party just got better!
